WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28, 1893.

It is some months since the P. G. passed a law to regulate newspapers. Although admittedly devised to worry the Holomua, the law was necessarily made general in its application. Strange to say, the terms of the law have not yet been complied with by either of the Government organs, but are daily violated by them in spite of the penalties provided. Here is a chance for the P. G. to add a few thousands to its revenue by recovering the penalties for which those papers are liable.

Both of the P. G. organs have had their say on the subject of Mr. Nordhoff's departure since the publication of Mr. Bennett's telegram asking him to stay here as long as he pleased. The Advertiser shows it has been knocked out by its descendant in length on an obvious mistake of the types in the date line of the telegram. Both papers throw out mysterious hints of official compulsion having been the cause of the departure of Mr. Nordhoff before he was quite ready to leave. Are they afraid to give the facts they claim to have in possession?

Our correspondent at Hilo, who has given evidence of being a zealous annexationist, claims to voice the general sentiment of the business people of that town in bitterly denouncing the action of the P. G. in making a change of Collector of Customs there. The dismissed official enjoyed universal confidence and esteem, and is a Hawaiian of more than average intelligence and attainments. He has been summarily removed to make room for a Hawaiian from Honolulu, whom the politicians could find no place for here as a reward for his services in canvassing his countrymen for the cause of annexation.

THE HILO FIRE.

Hilo does not do itself much credit in the exhibition it makes of its fire department, for which the late Legislature and the P. G. since made liberal provision. There are church bells in Hilo which surely could be utilized for fire alarms as in small towns abroad, also in the electric fire alarm systems of large cities. For the lack of water the townspeople are perhaps not to blame. A water supply should have preceded a fire department in improvements. The few people who turned out at the recent fire, however, seem to have done grand work with limited means in preventing the flames from spreading. Hilo being without manufactures in the town has not a reserve force of volunteer engineers, so that when this fire surprised the community, while the regular engineer was on his deathbed, there was nobody to work the engine if there had been water. It speaks well for the wooden town that fires have been so rare within its confines, and it is hoped that, if the fire reported in this issue was the work of an incendiary, as supposed to be beyond doubt, the miscreant will be brought to justice.

ALAKEA STREET.

With the docking of so many steamers, as is now the case, at the Pacific Mail wharf, arrives the necessity for completing the improvement of Alakea street. The wharf named is situated at the foot of this street, and the tall smokestacks and stately spars of the steamships confer a new distinction on the thoroughfare. Alakea furnishes the most direct route for all uptown quarters, including the Hawaiian and Arlington hotels, to the wharf in question. It affords the minimum exposure to the abounding dust of the water front, which is very disagreeable to passengers going to or from the wharf. Work has lately been progressing at the junction of Alakea street with the newly macadamized esplanade front. It ought to be continued with despatch to King street, leveling up the grade, which has been worn very rugged, to make it flush with the tramway rails. Attention is also needed to the approach by Alakea street to the wharf. It would be a great improvement to have a carriage entrance opened into the shed direct from the street. The construction of the Sailors' Home now begun on its line is an additional reason for having Alakea street made an attractive thoroughfare throughout.

P. G. PHILISTINISM.

Iconoclastic probably they deem themselves, but the public will view the P. G. as vandals. The old flagpole which has been standing in front of the barracks from time immemorial has been lowered and proffered as a gift to Mr. J. W. Kalua of Wailuku, presumably for lack of a more honest reward of his services as a decoy duck for annexation among his countrymen. Not satisfied with tearing down the quarters of the Queen's servants the P. G. must needs lay the ax to other state property that has been associated with royalty. There was talk lately about demolishing the stone barracks, and it wouldn't be surprising to see the picturesque stronghold razed to the ground. It is time the general public entered a strong protest against such vandalism involving double waste of value—the worth of the property destroyed, materially and esthetically, and the expense of the work of destruction.

The vandalism in nomenclature of time-honored objects is equally repulsive to good taste. Why should the name "Palace" have been supplanted by such a monstrosity as "Executive Building"? Then the word "Court House" for the mellifluous "Aliiolani Hale"—but the P. G. themselves were the first, through their organs, to avoid the mean term and grasp for more dignity in the clumsy appellation, "Judiciary Building." "King" street, "Queen" street, "Kaahumanu" street, "Lunalilo" street and "Kapiolani" street—not to mention "Victoria" street—may be expected next to have their names obliterated by the tar mop of the philistine oligarchs, and replaced by the fresher cognomens of "Dole," "Jones," "Smith," "Emmeluth," "Waterhouse," "Soper" and "MeLeod." ("King," however, might stay with the saving title "Captain" before it.)

Doubtless the fundamental principles of the Proclamation that does service as a constitution will prove broad enough to cover any such idle diversion of kindergarten administration. Anything to rub the hair of the natives the wrong way now goes for statesmanship.

NEWS FROM THE ORIENT.

Cholera at Hongkong—Delivery of Prisoner at Honolulu.

[Per Belgic.]

Several cases of cholera have occurred at Hongkong. According to the Chuwo, the action of Mr. Mutsu, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in ordering the captain of the Naniva Kan to deliver up to the Hawaiian authorities the escaped Japanese convict who sought refuge on board that man-of-war, has been severely criticized by many members of Parliament, and it is expected that important questions will be raised in connection with the incident at the next session of the Diet.

The Chinese naval authorities are now making their own heavy artillery. A 50-ton gun was recently tried at the arsenal. The remaining portion of Lieut. Gunji's expedition to the Kurile Islands is reported to have arrived safely at Hakodate in boats. Lieut. Miura Shigesato, formerly of the Hydrographic Bureau, will assist Lieut. Gunji in his colonizing scheme and will shortly sail for the Kurile Islands in a sailing vessel.

The native press are agitating against foreigners being allowed to acquire lands outside of the foreign settlements, the same being held nominally by Japanese. The Japanese Government is economizing; in future Government clerks must find their own matches to light their cigarettes with.

HE DIES ONCE A WEEK.

An Italian Impostor Who is Known All Over Russia.

An Italian, who cannot be other than a most remarkable impostor, has been playing wonderful tricks upon the good people of Tiflis, in the Caucasus, Russia. His name is Tagarelli, and while he cannot be termed an Italian in the strict sense of the word, having been born in Russia of parents born in the same country, it is known that he is of that extraction. He is known all over the land of the Czar as "The Dying Prophet," his ability to delude the public depending on a queer faculty he has for dying and returning to life once every week.

A person who has viewed the situation on the ground says: The audacity of his pretensions, the skill with which they are maintained, and, above all, the profound effect produced upon all who come in contact with him, have no parallel in history. He is a most extraordinary being, and if he is an impostor then he is the most marvelous impostor of the age. He dies, to all appearances, and the ordinary death tests declare that life is extinct. While in this condition he declares that his spirit "visits the other world," but which of the two he will not tell. All that he will divulge in regard to his doings while on these "trips" is that he can tell the spiritual standing of every person who cares enough about it to make inquiries.—St. Louis Republic.

Trusts and Combinations

Are unpopular. But there is one form of trust against which no one has anything to say. That is the trust which the public reposes in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the best of it is the trust is fully justified by the merit of the medicine. For, remember, Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures.

"German Syrup"

For Coughs & Colds.

John F. Jones, Edom, Tex., writes: I have used German Syrup for the past six years, for Sore Throat, Cough, Colds, Pains in the Chest and Lungs, and let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best.

B. W. Baldwin, Carnesville, Tenn., writes: I have used your German Syrup in my family, and find it the best medicine I ever tried for coughs and colds. I recommend it to everyone for these troubles.

R. Schmalhausen, Druggist, of Charleston, Ill., writes: After trying scores of prescriptions and preparations I had on my files and shelves without relief for a very severe cold, which had settled on my lungs, I tried your German Syrup. It gave me immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Supposed Incendiary Fire Destroys the Hotel Annex.

No Alarm and the New Fire Department Helpless.

Hilo has had its second fire in 13 years. It occurred on Thursday morning, 22d inst. at the original Hilo Hotel, now called the Annex, the hotel proper being the former Spencer mansion. The fire was first seen at 3:30 a. m., flames issuing from the front door. The police were called and a few citizens came to the rescue, but it was soon that the fire was making such headway that the building could not be saved. Efforts were accordingly made to save the hotel proper. A bucket company was formed and water thrown on the bath house and hotel, and a small house was also used, all with such effect that the hotel proper was saved.

The new engine was brought up by Wilson's horses, but too late to be of any use even though there had been water to be got, which there was not. The engineer was sick and has since died, and those who were in charge of the machine did not understand it sufficiently to make it work. So it was of no use. In fact, no bells were rung to waken anybody, as we have no alarm bell. We should have one at once. A majority of the people knew nothing of the fire until after the building was burned down, which was one hour after the flames were discovered. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary—no doubt of it. There was no one in the house at the time. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Furneaux occupied the first floor, but were not at home that night. They lost a very valuable library, containing some very choice works, and other valuable articles. Only a few of their things were saved. Rev. Mr. Baptiste, who had occupied a room but is now in America, left his trunk and some books in his room. Most of his things were saved, with a bed and a few clothes belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Furneaux. The smoke was so dense and the fire so very hot that it was impossible to save but a few things. The house was only about five years old. It was insured, but for how much is not known here. It belonged to the Victors, and one of that family, now at Honolulu, has the policy. It is thought that the insurance will cover the mortgage on the house.

J. Vierra, manager Hilo hotel, had furniture in the upper story of the house, which was only used in case the hotel proper was full. His loss he estimates at $700, and he had no insurance, neither had Mr. and Mrs. Furneaux. If the Government have an extra bell we wish they would send it to Hilo for a fire alarm bell.

CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH.

The Glorious Fourth will be celebrated at Hilo by a luau on Coccau Island, gotten up by our enterprising townsman, Mr. J. R. Wilson. Transportation both ways and refreshments at the small sum of one dollar each person. The fact that he will get it up is a guarantee that it will be a good time, and all will be pleased. No liquor will be allowed on the ground. A police force will be in attendance. The Hilo band will also play national airs. An oration is expected from Rev. E. P. Baker, and it is expected that we shall all be pleased.

DEATH OF THE FIRE ENGINEER.

Hugh McGinnis, engineer of the fire department, died on Sunday, 25th inst. Mrs. A. B. Loebenstein remembered him kindly by sending a beautiful cross of flowers to put on his coffin. This deed of kindness to the memory of a stranger is of such as will make the memory of the donor herself blessed. J.A.M. Hilo, June 24, 1893.

Hawaiian Hardware Co., Ltd

Saturday, June 24, 1893.

These continued lawn-brightening showers are having a depressing effect on the windmill business. Every one will remember when they recollect it that February was the banner month for rainfall in the Kingdom—even the weather clerks noticed it. The rains have kept up until now, many of the fish in the bay are becoming water-soaked and we hear whispered around the hotels that the milk is affected, but there has not been rain enough to supply plantations for irrigating purposes. We—and the Aermotor—look out for that, our 12 and 16-foot wheels and a triple acting pump will do as well and for less money than a steam engine. Have you ever thought of it? How the wind (it doesn't have to be a strong breeze or a gale as with other mills) will supply the place of coal or wood and give the same results. Wind is cheap in the Hawaiian Islands.

We are now prepared to offer the stock man or plantation man generally a Locked Wire Fence that is superior to anything of the kind sold. You can build it as rapidly as an ordinary wire fence and with fewer posts, consequently less expense than the other. When completed the fence will resist attacks of stock that would break down any fence constructed in the old way. If for any reason it should need repairing one man can do it at a great saving of time. We have samples, actual size, to show persons who are interested in fence building and who contemplate improving their properties. One progressive man on the other side of this island, erected the first and since then we have received orders for many miles of it. Understand that it is not a made-up arrangement, we sell you the wires, the stays and the locks. Your own men put it up and you save in posts and in time.

How the wind (it doesn't have to be a strong breeze or a gale as with other mills) will supply the place of coal or wood and give the same results. Wind is cheap in the Hawaiian Islands.

We are now prepared to offer the stock man or plantation man generally a Locked Wire Fence that is superior to anything of the kind sold. You can build it as rapidly as an ordinary wire fence and with fewer posts, consequently less expense than the other. When completed the fence will resist attacks of stock that would break down any fence constructed in the old way. If for any reason it should need repairing one man can do it at a great saving of time. We have samples, actual size, to show persons who are interested in fence building and who contemplate improving their properties. One progressive man on the other side of this island, erected the first and since then we have received orders for many miles of it. Understand that it is not a made-up arrangement, we sell you the wires, the stays and the locks. Your own men put it up and you save in posts and in time.

THREE MEN ON TRIAL

First Day of the Preliminary Examination.

Evidence to Show that Walker, Sinclair and Crick Conspired to Overthrow the Government.

The District Courtroom was crowded this morning with people anxious to hear the conspiracy case of T. B. Walker, Archie Sinclair and E. C. Crick.

Magistrate Carter after a short conference with both counsel, announced that the case would come up at 10:30 o'clock.

By that time the crowd had increased, and extra chairs and a bench had to be put in to accommodate the people.

Minister of the Interior, appearing in the courtroom was asked by Judge Carter, "Would Captain King like to sit up here?"

"No, no," replied Mr. King. The prisoners were brought into court at 10:40 o'clock, neatly attired, and presenting the appearance of anything but conspirators.

Judge Carter wished to state before the proceedings commenced that Judge Foster and himself had made arrangements with each other so that he (Carter) would preside on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

To decide whether he would be acceptable to defendants they had addressed a letter to Creighton, counsel for the defense, and had received a reply accepting the substitute.

Attorney-General Smith stated that A. S. Hartwell assisted the prosecution.

Chas. Creighton, preferred to have charge read again. It was usual in important cases, and professional courtesy, for the prosecution to serve the defendant with a copy of the charge.

Judge—Not unless asked for. Creighton—I did ask for it. The Attorney-General then read the charge as previously reported.

Creighton objected to the charge as read, as it contained seventeen different offenses. There was a charge of levying war, and a proposition to take the Executive building, and a conspiracy to do something else, and so on. It was impossible to meet the charges at one time.

Counsel must have one square issue to plead to the charges, as they stood unspecified. Counsel wanted to know whether his clients were charged with the whole of Section 5 and seventeen other charges or what?

A. S. Hartwell said the constituents of the offense are named in the section. A person can be guilty of doing any of those acts for which these men are charged. Defendants were not required to plead. The District Judge was only sitting as a committing magistrate to examine evidence. In Section of said Act there are three acts.

Creighton pointed out three distinct crimes in the section as read by counsel.

Hartwell—Beg pardon, I said acts. Creighton—Well, yes, acts are crimes under this section. Counsel read the P. G. conspiracy act and elucidated five distinct charges. He was prepared to meet any charge on the point, but he would possibly meet the whole section with its numerous charges.

Hartwell submitted that the charge was not in the alternative. The different charges constituted one offense. If it was difficult to meet the charge, that was counsel's misfortune.

Creighton thought there was no difficulty to meet the charge. He read the warrant. The indictment did not hold water and would be thrown out of court. He compared the document to the Ho Fon conspiracy indictment. It was in the alternative and specified no charge, and was thrown out of court.

Hartwell made an explanation of the Ho Fon conspiracy case. Creighton was glad to know that counsel for the prosecution had drawn the Ho Fon indictment and remarked its not holding water. The prosecution probably wanted to go on a fishing excursion. He was prepared to prove the men not guilty.

J. A. Magoon quoted a chapter in the Civil Code in support of the citation that crime must be specified. A man is held for malicious injury in that he had done a specified act. Chapter 28 Penal Code a contention is made that every act must be set out specifically. The same rule applied here exactly. They must do one thing to come under this law.

Hartwell quoted Chapter 9 of the Penal Code when in a charge of malicious injury there were five offenses. Under the charge in this case there is one penalty.

Creighton objected to the scope also of the charge, the warrant reading within the three months last past. It gave them all the leeway they wanted. He read section 1 chapter 28 defining this point. In any other country the prosecution had to specify day, date and hour.

Smith, heatedly—The Supreme Court decided that, and you know it!

Creighton admitted that there was some latitude in this country. A man may be charged with a crime within twenty-five years past. Nevertheless, he proposed to meet all evidence and to brand it as lies.

Judge Carter felt so much uncertainty as to his ability to preside at the hearing that he felt it his duty to prepare himself. Last night he had looked up certain authorities on the point in question. The objections are that indictment does not specify time or charge. He considered charge as made was sufficient. The gist of the conspiracy was held in the conspiracy and not in acts. He had heard nothing from counsel about the Ho Fon conspiracy. Understood it as conspiracy to commit treason without specifying act.

Creighton—Same thing here. The Supreme Court gave a decision entirely against the authority on which Judge Carter based his decision.

Attorney-General called the following witness, and the case began:

Orrick sworn: Reside U. S. S. Boston, acquainted with defendants, met them during last three months, at Merchant's Exchange and on board U. S. S. Boston; an apothecary; three gentlemen came there 11 and 12 o'clock Sunday in May; met three of them after that; had conversation with each one of them at times; Walker made request of me, whether I knew the formula for fulminate of mercury or fulminate of silver; told him I knew little about it; asked me if I'd be willing to make the mixture for him; said maybe I would, by and by; made no further request; spoke about this only once in Merchant's Exchange; can't state what time, about two months ago; had conversation with Crick several times.

Creighton objected to leading questions.

Witness—Crick stated what he had for dinner; in May about 10:30 at night, came out of the Merchants' under influence of liquor, six or seven present; mentioned we were Americans; he was Englishman, said he had bombs to blow the Provisional Government to hell, dynamite bombs; he was under the influence of liquor; three petty officers from the Boston were there; told him not to talk so loud; engineer's yeoman, Powell, shipwright Andrew Brown, and myself; never heard any other remark bearing upon that subject from Walker or Crick.

Cross-examined—All talk was over social drink; the mentioned night Crick was pretty full; did not give Walker fulminate of silver or mercury; were not present when they were conspiring about bombs, and did not see any; never asked O'Hallihan, a carpenter, to come and testify he was present when Crick made speech; told a friend of mine about the talk first, more as a joke; the Marshal called on me on board; commanding officer B. F. Day called me into cabin and introduced me to Marshal; been very friendly with defendants; was in good society night Crick made speech, only had two drinks.

To Attorney-General Smith—Was not disposed to go to their residences; declined to give the formula for many reasons, one reason was not quite sure of it myself.

An anxious witness was put out by Roundsman Kaapa.

D. R. Powell, sworn: Reside on quainted with Crick and Walker; met them separately at same place, corner Nuuanu and King streets; met Crick May 27, at 9:30 p.m.; heard Crick, in company with two or three others, say he had high explosive in his possession; he proposed in two weeks to blow the Provisional Government to hell; told Crick he ought to keep such a thing as that to himself; Crick and Brown were present; Crick was himself that evening; had seen him visiting on board Boston on one occasion; don't know whether other defendants were on ship.

Cross-examined—Crick was under the influence of liquor; had no drinks with Crick; talk loud so that people passing could hear; this was about 9:30 o'clock; event in Merchant's Exchange alone; came out again; Crick and Orrick were in saloon; am not sure that Orrick had been drinking; don't remember seeing Crick in Anchor Saloon; was introduced to Crick on Boston; met Walker ashore and had a drink with him once; Crick said that he was a chemist and had a high explosive, an invention of his own; time was between 9:30 and 10; am not aware that Sinclair and Walker were present at the time.

Adjourned at 12:15 till 1:30 o'clock.

This afternoon, Thomas Wright, blacksmith, and Simon von Tross, a P. G. guard, gave evidence on behalf of the P. G.

Catholic Cathedral of Honolulu.

When and How the Crisp Bank of England Notes Are Made.

In a picturesque Hampshire nook in the valley of the river Test stands a busy mill from which is produced the paper whose crispness is music to the human ear all the world over. Since 1719 this Leverstoke mill has been busy in the manufacture of the Bank of England note paper, and at the present time about 50,000 of the coveted crisp pieces of paper are made there daily.

To a careless observer there does not appear to be much difference between a Bank of England note of the present day and one of those which were first issued toward the end of the seventeenth century, but when looked into it will be found that the present note is as regards the quality of the paper and the excellence of the engraved writing a much more remarkable production. The fact is, the Bank of England and forgers of false notes have been running a race—the bank to turn out a note which defies the power of the forger to imitate it, and those nimble-fingered and keen-witted gentry to keep even with the bank.

The notes now in use are most elaborately manufactured bits of paper. The paper itself is remarkable in many ways; none other has that peculiar feel of crispness and toughness, while the eye (when it has satisfied itself with the amount) may dwell with admiration on the paper's remarkable whiteness. Its thinness and transparency are guards against two once popular modes of forgery—the washing out of the printing by means of turpentine and ensuare with the knife.

The wirework is another precaution against counterfeiting, and is produced in the paper while it is in a state of pulp. In the old manufacture of bank notes this watermark was caused by an immense number of wires (over 2,000) stretched and sewn together now it is engraved in a steel-faced die, which is afterward hardened and is then used as a punch to stamp the pattern out of plates of sheet brass. The shading of the letters of this watermark enormously increases the difficulty of imitation.

The paper is made entirely from pieces of new linen and cotton, and the toughness of it can be roughly guessed from the fact that a single bank note will, when unsized, support the weight of thirty-six pounds, while when sized you may lift fifty-six pounds with it.

Few people would imagine that a Bank of England note was not of the same thickness all through. It is not, though. The paper is thicker in the left hand corner to enable it to take a better and sharper impression of the vignette there, and it is also considerably thicker in the dark shadows of the center letters, and under the figures at the ends.

Counterfeit notes are invariably of only one thickness throughout. The printing is done from electro-types, the figure of Britannia being an Academician.

Even the printing ink is of special make, and is manufactured at the bank. Comparing a genuine with a forged note, one observes that the print on the latter is generally bluish or brown. On the real note it is a velvety black.

The chief ingredients used in making the ink are linseed oil and the charred husks and some other portions of Rhenish grapes.

The notes are printed at the rate of 3,000 an hour at Napier's steam press, and the bank issues 9,000,000 of them in a year, representing about £300,000,000 in hard cash.—London Answers.

Mr. Stevens' Valedictory.

A document has been printed which purports to be an address by the people of the United States to John L. Stevens, ex-Minister to the Hawaiian Islands. As it is not signed by him, it may be hoped that a paper so scurrilous and scandalous may turn out to be a forgery, or at all events unauthorized. It must be said, however, that the paper is in no wise inconsistent with the acts of Mr. Stevens while he was Minister, while in its leading ideas it tallies wonderfully well with the Fra Diavolo school of politics, of which Mr. Stevens is so apt a pupil. The address begins by describing the country as just the sort of thing that we ought to have. "Those beautiful emeralds of the North Pacific Sea," he calls them. Who would not like to have a set of beautiful emeralds if they could be had by grabbing? Of course, some reasons must be given for grabbing them. So the Government is referred to as a "semi-barbaric monarchy resting on no solid or normal foundation, dead in everything but its vices, and wishfully sending out impure exhalations, and spreading social and political demoralization throughout the Islands." This, be it remembered, is language applied to a government to which Mr. Stevens was accredited in a diplomatic capacity, but in the matter of indecorum it is far surpassed by what follows. In the next paragraph the address assails the personal character of the Queen, and accuses her of having scandalous relations with her chamberlain, a married man who draws a salary from the Government Treasury. This kind of talk, if spoken concerning a private American family, would naturally lead to the horsewhipping of the person making the charge. It ought to have no less punishment in the present case, quite regardless of the truth or falsity of the accusation.

After blackguarding the Queen in this way the paper proceeds to narrate the course of events which constitute what is called the revolution in Hawaii, omitting, however, the rebuke administered to Minister Stevens himself by President Harrison for hoisting the American flag over the Islands. After giving his version of these events the paper advocates the grabbing policy by pointing to the conquests of Rome and of Alexander and the later acquisitions of Great Britain, which the writer apparently approves of, adding, by way of comment on this list of historical grabbings, that "by continuity of interest, of water, and the necessary laws of inter-communication they (the Islands) belong to the American system of States." On the same principles everything that was in Fra Diavolo's reach belonged to him. The final appeal of the paper is that the American people should throw aside partisanship and all become Stevenses. The example of Great Britain is found admirable and worthy of imitation again in this respect: that however much her statesmen may differ in home politics, they are always at one in respect of grabbing foreign territory. "To this firm, dignified, and patriotic attitude Great Britain largely owes her greatness," says the paper. If the present Administration shall neglect this opportunity, the American people will, in the opinion of the writer, rise in their majesty and do the necessary grabbing, so that "those gems of the ocean may be accepted and placed among the jewels of America's future crown of glory and empire." With this highfalutin editorial in the Kamehame Journal style the paper comes to an end. It scarcely needed such a document as this to vindicate the wisdom of President Cleveland in sending a Commissioner to Honolulu to supersede Stevens. Mr. Blount's course ever since his arrival has been both just and gentlemanly—that is, the opposite of Stevens' course in almost every particular.—N. Y. Post.

Dr. M. J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis and Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for the past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May, while in Des Moines en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhoea. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliability, he procured a 25 cent bottle, two doses of which completely cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhoea. Every one should procure a bottle of this Remedy before leaving home. For sale by all dealers.
