

COUNTY LAW TEST SUIT MONDAY

HIGHTON RETAINED

THE CIVIC FEDERATION WILL BEGIN A SUIT ON MONDAY TO TEST THE VALIDITY OF THE COUNTY ACT—WILL BE BROUGHT IN THE NAME OF W. R. CASTLE AS A TAX-PAYER—JUDGE HIGHTON WILL CONDUCT THE CONTEST.

Monday morning will see the inauguration of a campaign for the purpose of testing the validity of the County Act. The test will be made at the instance of the Civic Federation and Henry E. Highton has already been retained to make the fight. W. R. Castle will probably be the person to bring the matter to a focus as he is president of the Federation. This morning Attorney General Andrews, representing the government, called on Castle and held a conference with him as to what was to be done and while all particulars were not arranged enough was done to make it sure that the test will be made on Monday. "I simply represented the Territory" said the Attorney General after the conference. "If the validity of the County Act is to be tested the government is of course vitally interested. No, I have no information as to what shape the case will assume, all I know is that the test is to be commenced on Monday." Castle was so busy this morning that he could not be seen but from other sources it was learned that the suit will be instituted in the Supreme Court by him as a taxpayer to prevent the Governor and the Secretary of the Territory from going ahead with the work of preparing for the election of County officers on the ground that the act is invalid. Judge Highton will be assisted by other counsel in the case but his associate has not yet been chosen.

NATIVES PROTEST

ANGRY CRITICISMS OF THE SIX SENATORS WHOSE VOTES SUSTAINED THE VETO OF THE LEPROSY BILL—THEIR NAMES PUBLISHED WITHIN BLACK BORDERS INDICATING THAT THEY ARE AMONG THE POLITICALLY DEAD.

The native papers are up in arms against the six senators whose votes sustained the governor's veto of the leprosy bill. The bill had a narrow escape, as the House overrode the veto by a big majority and there were nine votes to override in the Senate. President Isenberg cast the deciding vote against the bill, making the six necessary to sustain the veto. The last issue of the Aloha Aina contains the names of the six between black borders, indicating that they are dead politically. The six are Isenberg, Paris, Dickey, Bishop, Wilcox and Gandall. In all the native papers, criticisms of the utmost severity is being passed upon their conduct. At a meeting of the Home Rulers this morning the matter came up and the six were roasted to a finish. The Home Rulers and the native press have them on a blacklist on account of their action. The leprosy bill so earnestly desired would, it is claimed, have practically abolished the segregation system, so extensive were its curtailments of the powers of the Board of Health. Its enactment in the opinion of many, would have very promptly resulted in the federal government interfering, taking hold of the settlement and making laws for the segregation of lepers here. The bill was a bone of contention which for a time threatened to seriously interfere with the work of the session, the House being disposed to demand its passage or retaliation for failure to pass it by holding up other work.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM HENRY VIDA

SENATOR ACHI AND CECIL BROWN AS POSSIBLE CANDIDATES FOR SUPERVISOR.

Senator W. C. Achi is reported to have aspirations as a candidate for supervisor of this county, and the question has been raised as to whether he is eligible under the provision of the Organic Act which says that no member of the legislature shall be elected to any other office of the Territory during his term. Under the theory that a county office is not an office of the Territory, it is claimed that Achi can run. Ex-Senator Cecil Brown is also mentioned for supervisor at large. Some of his supporters have asked him to come out as a candidate, but he has not yet signified whether he wants to run or not. In the matter of the contest for the sheriff nomination, considerable interest attaches to the position of Henry Vida, chairman of the Fifth District Committee, and a very influential man in his district. It is believed by many that Vida's attitude will practically settle whether Brown or Crabbe shall have the Republican nomination. Vida is on his way back from London, where he went to extradite H. Kapea under an indictment for embezzlement. It is said that he is likely to be the deputy sheriff of Honolulu district. His support is claimed by some of those on both sides of the contest now going on. The Home Rulers, it is said, will not nominate any candidate for sheriff. At

ALEXANDER YOUNG REPORTED TO BE BUYING BONDS OF THE FAMOUS BEACH HOSTELRY WITH A VIEW TO GAINING CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY AND RUNNING IT IN CONNECTION WITH THE YOUNG HOTEL.

Rumor has it that Alexander Young is making an effort to gain control of the Moana hotel, to conduct it in connection with the Alexander Young hotel. There has been considerable buying of Moana hotel company bonds recently, and it is said that the bonds are being acquired by Young, with a view to ultimately taking the hotel property itself. The Moana hotel has a world wide reputation as a beach resort. It is owned principally by W. C. Peacock and managed by A. Hertsche. For a long time after it was started the hotel was understood to have been run at a heavy loss but recently it is reported to have a much better financial success.

AH ON GETS NEW TRIAL

JUDGE DE BOLT SETS ASIDE THE VERDICT OF GUILTY AND ORDERS A RETRIAL OF THE CASE—SEVERE CRITICISM OF DAVIS BY THE COURT—SOME EVIDENCE WHICH SHOULD HAVE BEEN EXCLUDED.

Judge De Bolt gave a decision this morning ordering a new trial of the case of Ah On and assigning the case to Judge Lindsay as De Bolt held himself disqualified from hearing it again. The decision was based on the affidavit of Ah On regarding the conduct of his attorney, Davis, and on an error during the trial. In the admission of evidence which the court now holds should not have been allowed to go to the jury. The motion was presented by Judge Humphreys, who said he relied mainly on the misconduct of Attorney Davis and placed special emphasis on Davis' remark during the trial to the effect that "It's only a case of bribery and if the jury finds him guilty all right." Peters asked for a continuance, but the court refused it and Peters sent for an affidavit which he wanted to file. It was by eleven of the jurors, and stated that the actions of Davis had not prejudiced their view of the case, and that they thought the judge had carefully protected the interests of the defendant during the trial.

LOVING CUP FOR SCHAEFER

PRESIDENT OF THE UNDERWRITERS WAS GIVEN A HANDSOME PRESENT THIS MORNING.

President F. A. Schaefer of the Board of Underwriters was a surprised man this morning. He was told that Treasurer Campbell was going to give an address on the new tax law but he submitted cheerfully. The ordinary man may judge his surprise then when Vice-President J. A. Gilman rose and handed the president a beautiful solid

"Is Leprosy Curable?" is the heading of the following news item in a late English paper:
Treatment with leprolin, the new serum prepared by Captain Rost, J. M. S., is being tried in several of the Indian Asylums of the Mission to Lepers. At Purulia, in Bengal (where the society support 5,000 lepers), three cases are declared by the Deputy Sanitary Commissioner of the district to be "to all intents and purposes completely cured." Others show less favorable results. The hopeful cases will be isolated and observed for six months before a final decision can be pronounced. If found to be of lasting benefit, the society will adopt the treatments in others of its forty-two asylums in India and the East. Meanwhile, it is hopeful to have Dr. Wilson of Miraj, Bombay Presidency saying: "There is no doubt that Dr. Rost has made a very great discovery, and again opened the door of hope to the lepers."

GREAT ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR

SO THOROUGHLY does this Great Exposition represent the world's civilization that if all men's other works were, by some unspeakable catastrophe, blotted out, the record here established would afford a necessary standard for the re-establishment of our entire civilization. And, just as the Louisiana Purchase Exposition held within its gates an epitome of the civilization of to-day, so the Forest City Portfolios are a complete record and reflex of the great Exposition. This great World's Fair, one of the most remarkable undertakings in the history of American civilization and progress, will inspire many pens, but no history of the great event can compare with the one written on the grounds by Secretary Stevens and illustrated with 480 magnificent photographic reproductions, which transfer the Exposition to the printed page.

Minister Bowen In Trouble

MINISTER BOWEN.

Associated Press Cable

WASHINGTON, April 29—Minister Bowen will be ordered to leave Caracas and report to Washington to explain charges made by him against his predecessor, Mr. Loomis. His usefulness in Venezuela is marred and his return unlikely.

Herbert Wolcott Bowen has been the United States Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Venezuela since June, 1901. He was born in Brooklyn, February 29, 1865. He studied at the Brooklyn Polytechnic and in Europe, and was a member of the class of 1878 at Yale, though he did not graduate. He received the degree of LL.B. from Columbia Law School in 1881, and practiced law in New York. He was appointed Consul in 1890 and Consul-General in 1895 at Barcelona. Later he was Minister and Consul-General to Persia. He is the author of several works both in prose and in verse. He succeeded the present Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis as Minister to Venezuela, and until lately his handling of the difficult Venezuelan matters has been very satisfactory.

A bus load of Scotch Highlanders narrowly averted a serious accident Saturday evening near Waimaku. A party of eighteen were going to Paipaiou to attend the wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Butchart, when the double team of horses became frightened at the sonorous notes of a bagpipe and bolted. The driver held the team with difficulty, but in the mixup the harness and vehicle were badly damaged, and it was necessary to send to Hilo for additional conveyances. None of the occupants of the bus were injured.—Hilo Tribune.

The New Liquor Law

The new liquor law is an elaborate piece of legislation. It carries out some ideas new to this community but which have been tried elsewhere, which on their face appear to provide a solution of the liquor problem, which, like the poor, we have always with us. In the final test these ideas depend altogether on how effectively they can be enforced. A law which prohibits the sale of liquors to habitual drunkards under very severe penalties might for instance be expected to do away with his species in a short time, but no practical legislators who voted for the law hoped for such a feature of the millennium.

The law appears to enjoy the distinction of not being regarded as satisfactory by any of the factions which have been struggling over it since the session began, which is probably a good sign. The liquor dealers are both alarmed at its severity in penalty and disgusted with its stringency in regulations, while the strong anti-saloon element view with dismay its probable increasing of the number of saloons throughout the islands. On the other hand the liquor men are happy over the provision that the authorities "shall" grant licenses to qualified applicants instead of merely "may" grant them, and the prohibition element must admit that the path of the liquor seller will be about as hard as the "way of the transgressor," in trying to comply with the multitudinous terms of the act, which fairly bristles with penalties for violations of those terms.

The Territory will have more saloons when the new act goes into effect. The city of Honolulu will probably have more. But if the law is intelligently and energetically enforced, they should take the place of an endless number of illicit establishments and will be well bounded in their worst possibilities of doing harm. Some of the provisions of the law are probably unconstitutional, as for example the section which practically declares for life imprisonment of a drunk who refuses to tell where he got his liquor, and possibly the one which attempts to make a criminal of an innocent purchaser of liquor sold in violation of the law.

Coming as it did in the midst of a revival and a temperance campaign, the law is a disappointment to the prohibition element. But as long as the community is as far as it is now from wanting to attempt absolute prohibition, the law should be regarded even by this element, as a good compromise with their favorite enemy. It is a vast improvement on the bill which the legislature originally passed, and its enactment in place of that one is a striking example of what tremendous good the veto power can accomplish. Some of the enemies of the law, disposed to regard it as too liberal in its provisions regarding the sale of liquor, denounce the Republicans who passed it. There is one question which it should be worth while for citizens who take this view to ask themselves, before they threaten to withdraw support from the Republican party for its action. That question is What sort of a bill would the other fellows have passed?

Influenza And Heart Disease

An article in the American Journal of the Medical Sciences for November, 1904, by Dr. Robert B. Preble, one of the Medical Inspectors of the Health Department of Chicago, throws considerable light on the continuing increase of deaths from heart disease. The subject of his article is inflammation of the membrane covering the valves of the heart caused by the pneumococcus, the organism which causes pneumonia.

Statistics in the Chronological Summary of Chicago Mortality, 1843-1904 inclusive, show that during the decade 1880-1889, immediately preceding the fourth great pandemic of influenza, which began in this country in December, 1889, the average yearly deaths from pneumonia were 12.69 per 10,000 of population. During the last decade, 1895-1904, they averaged 18.47—an increase of 45.5 per cent. During the earlier decade the deaths from heart disease averaged 6.80 per 10,000 of population; during the last decade they averaged 9.91 per 10,000—an increase of 45.7 per cent, or almost exactly the same as the increase of pneumonia mortality.

That a relationship, other than that of the coincidence of these rates of increase, exists between pneumonia and heart disease is made clear by a perusal of Dr. Preble's paper, and another charge should be added to the long list already scored against the "demon of influenza"—during whose reign these increases have taken place.

There can be no question that influenza or la grippe is the most important factor of the increase of pneumonia and, in consequence, of heart disease.

All kinds of excesses in living, as well as exposure and fatigue, invite attacks of the disease. All observers have testified to its frequency and to its heavy mortality, in the alcoholic particularly, and also in the overworked and harassed. They are further agreed that self-dosing with so-called influenza cures and specifics is not only useless but positively dangerous, and that mildness of attack and speedy recovery are best insured by taking to bed at once and following the advice of a competent physician. It is the worst folly to struggle on with work and to attempt to fight the disease—a plan that, although some come through successfully, is nevertheless the cause of the loss of many lives. This is of especial importance to those beyond middle age with crippled hearts, kidneys or other vital organs.

In some respects influenza resembles consumption in its mode of propagation; therefore, the same precautions with regard to the secretions from the nose, mouth and throat should be observed. These secretions literally teem with the influenza bacillus and they should be immediately destroyed or thoroughly disinfected under the advice of the attending physician. The rooms, bedding, clothing, etc., of influenza patients should also be thoroughly disinfected.

The influenza germ has been found by the Laboratory experts in uncomplicated influenza, in bronchitis, conjunctivitis, consumption, diarrheal disease, diphtheria, empyema, endocarditis, meningitis, nephritis, middle ear disease, mumps, pneumonia, scarlet fever, tonsillitis and whooping-cough; and also in cases mistaken for cerebro-spinal fever, lumbago, rheumatic fever and typhoid fever.

Attention was called to its being frequently mistaken for typhoid fever, and the effect of this warning when given is usually seen in the number of deaths reported from typhoid to the normal for the season of the year and the simultaneous increase in the reported deaths from influenza. This fact suggests the possibility that the mysterious epidemic on Molokai lately, which seemed so indeterminate in its symptoms, may have been influenza.

GREAT MEN OF A GREAT PERIOD.

The death of Fitzhugh Lee recalls the fact that the striking figures of the Civil War period are rapidly passing away. It is only a few weeks ago that John H. Reagan, Postmaster General of the confederacy died, the last survivor of President Jefferson Davis' cabinet. A little later Gen. Lew Wallace, a famous federal general died and now Fitzhugh Lee, a Major General against the flag and a Major General under it, has gone. The civil war produced some most striking figures on both sides, but one of the unique features of that great struggle and the reconstruction period and the era of restored confidence which followed is the large number of men who attained distinction in the confederacy, fighting against the union, and afterwards in civil or military life, or both, under the stars and stripes. Fitzhugh Lee was an example of this. A graduate of and an instructor in, the Military Academy at West Point before the war, he resigned his commission to join the Confederacy. After the war, he became governor of Virginia and under the administration of Cleveland he was appointed Consul-General to Havana. He retained the post under President McKinley, and was at that difficult post at the time the Maine was destroyed, and during the times immediately following when a clear head and diplomatic ability were required. He performed his duties with such astuteness and patriotism as to command the enthusiastic approval of every patriotic American. He was commissioned a Major General of Volunteers by President McKinley when the war with Spain came, and at the close of that war he entered the regular army again, after being separated from it for nearly forty years. Such an experience is perhaps unique, outside of the United States, though possibly parallels and analogies may be found in France, in the forty years that followed the French Revolution, when republics followed directorates, and empires, kingdoms and dynasties succeeded each other in kaleidoscopic change.

John H. Reagan was another man who attained eminence both against the union and for it. Indeed, he was eminent in the Texas Republic and her struggle with Mexico, in the Confederacy and since the war as a Senator

If Hatter's successor is here perhaps it is not inappropriate at this time to wish him better luck in his cases than the other Pinkerton man is having.

PRESIDENT CASTRO

President Castro of Venezuela shares with the Sultan of Turkey and the successive rulers of Santa Domingo the distinction of being in the class which all the other powers have trouble in looking after. He came into power in Venezuela, as most Presidents of South American Republics do, by means of a revolution. Little has been said in praise of his mental abilities, or his attainments, and yet he seems to have held power about as long as the average of his predecessors, and though he has always been in hot water with the powers, he has so far managed to keep out of serious trouble with any of them. Not long ago he boasted that he would land at New Orleans and march an army up the Mississippi valley, but then Kuropatkin said he would sign the treaty of peace in Tokio, Stoesel swore he would never surrender, and Linevitch is reported as boasting that he is ready to take the offensive against the Japanese.

Early in December, 1902, Great Britain and Germany made a joint demand upon Venezuela for the settlement of certain debts and to enforce their demand began a so-called peaceful blockade of the seaports of the republic. This was continued until February 13, 1903, when protocols were signed by Great Britain, Germany and Italy to end the blockade and to refer their claims, with those of other creditor nations, to the Hague tribunal. United States Minister Bowen, representing Venezuela, was especially active in bringing about an understanding. During the year the case was laid before the tribunal at The Hague, where the hearing of arguments closed November 13.

LOVING CUP FOR SCHAEFER

(Continued from page one.) silver-loving cup, in presenting the cup the Vice-President said: "Mr. President: I consider it a compliment and an honor to address you on behalf of the members of this Board. "As you are about to leave the Islands on an extended trip abroad, and as it will soon be the nineteenth anniversary of the organizing of this association, the members think this a fitting time to extend to you their congratulations and best wishes.

"I believe, Mr. President, that this Board of Fire Underwriters is the only organization of its kind that has enjoyed an uninterrupted existence for nearly twenty years.

"This Board was established in June, 1886, for the purpose of creating harmony among its members, and good practices in underwriting.

"To say that the purposes for which this Board was started, has not been accomplished, would be untrue.

"Its success has been due principally to the advice and counsel of its President, who has always been ready to sacrifice himself, has always dealt fairly, and without prejudice, and has more than once poured oil upon the troubled waters, thereby restoring harmony, and good feeling, not only among the members of this Board as a whole, but among the members of the Executive Committee.

"It is the unanimous wish of the members of this Board, that both you and your family will enjoy the trip which you are now contemplating, and that you will return in your usual good health, and again assume command of this association for many years to come.

"It was first thought best that a dinner to be given in your honor would be the proper thing, but it was decided later to express our appreciation in another form.

"Take pleasure, Mr. President, in presenting you with this Cup, from the members of the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Territory of Hawaii, with their best wishes, and kindest regards. "I have just learned this morning, that today is the anniversary of your wedding, which makes it doubly pleasant to extend to you our congratulations."

The delivery of this eloquent address had given the president a chance to catch his breath and he made a feeling reply in which he expressed the deepest regard for the members of the Board and his thanks for their thoughtfulness. President Schaefer has been the head of affairs in the Board of Underwriters ever since its organization in 1886.

CRIME WORSE THAN MURDER

JUDGE DOLE GIVES CHINESE SLAVEHOLDER FULL PENALTY OF THE LAW.

The crime of Wong Loy and Lau Wai Kong in holding a Chinese girl, Sue, in slavery was characterized this morning by United States Judge Dole as worse than if they had murdered her at the start. The judge sentenced Wong to five years' imprisonment, which is the limit allowed by the statute, and gave Kong four years, taking off a year because he had pleaded guilty. In passing sentence the court gave an explanation of how the offense is regarded in American society.

"The offense is not one against the government alone," said Judge Dole, "but against society, against the public. While the crime of holding another person in slavery is not punished as heavily as some others it is a very serious one, especially when that person is a woman. Probably most persons of intelligence and reasonable sentiment would agree that it would have been better for the girl who was enslaved as the evidence shows if the defendants had murdered her at the outset rather than do what they have done. They have shown themselves to be enemies of society and dangerous to be at large, and the only proper place for them is in confinement."

Dickey, who appeared for the defense made a plea for leniency. J. J. Dunne called the court's attention to Wong's record, which is not a good one. In addition to the years of imprisonment, the defendants got a fine of $1 each, and costs.

REHEARING DENIED

The Supreme court this morning denied a rehearing of the case of the W. W. Bierce company against C. J. Hutchins, trustee for Kona Sugar Company stockholders. The suit was decided in favor of Hutchins, involving a large claim for Kona railway building. This is the case in which the counsel for plaintiff succeeded in having the Organic act amended so that appeals may be taken from the Supreme Court here to Washington, in cases involving $5,000 or over. The motion for a rehearing has served to keep the case open until that amendment became effective, and the way is now open for an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, under the amended Organic Act. C. A. Galbreath was attorney for the Bierce company and J. W. Caticant represented Hutchins.

AH ON GETS NEW TRIAL EPISCOPAL CONVOCATION

Humphreys remarked that it was a significant fact that one of the jurors had not signed the affidavit, but that the document was not entitled to much consideration anyway. "After a juror once gives a verdict he becomes an advocate of that verdict and ready to defend it at all times," he said. Later Humphreys offered to admit that the one juror who had not sworn that he was unprejudiced was unprejudiced. "But I deny it as to the other eleven," he added.

During the argument there was a little brush between Peters and the court. Peters argued the responsibility of the client for his counsel's act and made a statement which was afterwards quoted by Humphreys as "the intoxication of the attorney is the intoxication of the client." Peters said the statement was ridiculous.

"I thought so when you made it," said Judge De Bolt.

Peters offered somewhat sarcastic thanks to the court for this characterization of his argument, and proceeded to read the jurors' affidavit. "I beg to submit it will not be argued, the court having declared that my argument is ridiculous," he said.

De Bolt bristled up at this. He told Peters he had not made any such characterization except as to the intoxication of the client business, which Peters denied having said. "I understood you to say that the drunkenness and actions of the attorney were the drunkenness and actions of the client," said De Bolt.

Peters stated that his argument was that the actions of the attorney were in a legal sense the actions of the client, the attorneys neglect, if there was any, being equally the neglect of the client who was present. After a brief argument Judge De Bolt gave a long decision granting the motion for a new trial. Incidentally he very severely criticized Davis, and he ruled upon the question of admission of evidence of other bribes than the one referred to in the indictment. In the Ah On case such evidence was allowed to go in. Judge De Bolt said that attorney Thompson had convinced him in the McDuffie case that such evidence should not be allowed to go to the jury. "Mr. Davis raised the question and I remarked that there was a 'library full' of authorities," said Judge De Bolt. But he did not produce any. I was much impressed with the argument of Mr. Peters and allowed the evidence to go in. Since then I have gone into the matter thoroughly and am convinced that the evidence was not proper," Judge De Bolt discussed the matter at great length and quoted authorities in point. His decision if agreed to by Judge Lindsay in the coming trial, will shut out important testimony which went to the jury against Ah On in the case in which he was found guilty.

As to Davis' conduct in the trial, Judge De Bolt said it was a stain and blot on the judicial record of the court which time would perhaps never erase. He thought that he ought to have stopped the trial and order a continuance, but he had allowed it to go on under the impression that Davis would probably correct himself. The fact that the jurors thought the trial a fair one, was not to be considered as of great importance, as it could not be stated whether all the facts had been presented to the jury or not. The judge said it was so apparent that the defendant had not had a fair trial that he was surprised that the prosecution opposed the motion to set aside the verdict. Nothing could be more culpable and improper than the attorney's remark during the trial that it was only a case of bribery and if the verdict was guilty all right.

Humphreys stated after the decision that much of the discussion of the matter had been in chambers, and he desired the court to state that he had tried to avoid the necessity of filing the affidavit against Davis. De Bolt stated that Humphreys had said at the start that he did not wish the proceedings to harm Davis any more than they had already done. De Bolt had told Humphreys that the affidavit was necessary, when he found that the motion for a new trial was to be opposed, in order that the reasons would appear on the record.

NAN PATTERSON CASE CLOSED

NAN PATTERSON. (Associated Press Cable)

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Nan Patterson case has been closed. There was no testimony for the defense.

This is the second trial of Nan Patterson, sometimes known as Nan Randolph, for the murder of Caesar Young, a well known horseman. She was a chorus girl and attained her first prominence as one of the "Floradora Girls," when that popular opera was in its early success. Young, who was a married man, became infatuated with her. Finally his friends persuaded him to get away from Nan Patterson and go to Europe. He and his wife were ready to sail; their passage had been engaged on a trans-Atlantic steamer. Young met the Patterson woman almost at the last moment before sailing, and got into a cab with her. He was shot while in the cab. She claimed that he shot himself. She was tried once, and the jury disagreed.

FITZHUGH LEE IS DEAD

(Associated Press Cable)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29.—General Fitzhugh Lee is dead.

Fitzhugh Lee, nephew of the late General Robert E. Lee of Virginia, was a descendant of the Lees of the Revolution, who were closely related to George Washington by marriage. Fitzhugh Lee has had a brilliant career. He was born in Clermont, Fairfax county, Va., November 10, 1835, the son of Commodore Sydney Smith Lee, U. S. N., and Anna Maria Mason Lee. He graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1856, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Second Cavalry, and was severely wounded in a fight with Indians. He was instructor of cavalry at West Point, 1860-61, but resigned his commission in the latter year to enter the Confederate service, and was adjutant general of Ewell's brigade, C. S. A., until September, 1861; Lieut.-Col. and Colonel First Virginia Cavalry, participating in all the battles of the Army of Northern Virginia, 1861-62; Brig.-Gen., 1862; Major-Gen., September, 1863. He had three horses shot under him and was himself severely wounded at Winchester, Va., September 19, 1864; commanded the whole cavalry corps, Army of Northern Virginia, March, 1865, until he surrendered to General Meade at Farmville. He was Governor of Virginia from 1886 to 1890, elected as a Democrat. His later fame came as U. S. Consul-General at Havana, Cuba, from 1893 until the declaration of the war with Spain in April, 1898. During this time Gen. Lee was a diplomatic but energetic official in a difficult post. The return of Consul-General Lee from Havana to the United States was a triumphal entry. At Washington, D. C., he was met at the depot at night by government officials, committees, brass bands, and almost the whole of the population of Washington. He made a speech that night from the balcony of the Shoreham Hotel which aroused the crowd to patriotic enthusiasm, which spread to the whole nation. In May, 1898, he was appointed a Major-General of Volunteers in the army against which he had fought from '61 to '65, and was placed in command of the Seventh Army Corps. After the war he became military governor at Havana, and later, as a Brigadier-General in the U. S. Regular Army, he was in command of the Department of Missouri. He always made his home at Richmond. His son is in the army.

WOOLLEY GIVES SOME HOT SHOT

TEMPERANCE ORATOR TELLS CHURCHMEN AND VOTERS TO BECOME MORE ACTIVE.

Hon. John G. Woolley delivered a rousing address in the opera house last night in the temperance cause. After his address the audience gave him a vote of thanks, on motion made by Senator Dickey, who was in the audience, and seconded by W. R. Castle.

"If a man is watching the church with one eye and the political machine with the other, he would not know God if he met him in the road (laughter). Don't mind your neighbors; get yourself fit and clean and then you can teach them. It is sheer rubbish for us to be praying for fogs when we sow thistles. It is foolish to pray for your city when you help the saloon. It is a pious monopoly. It is nonsense to pray for sober citizenship when we sow saloons by our political actions.

"In our churches there is too much bookkeeping and too little business; too much of dealing in theological margins and puts and calls, and too little dealing in Christian merchandise at the polling booths. There is far too little of the outreaching salvation of Jesus Christ.

"Why stand ye here on election day—idle?"

"Is it left to the breweries, the saloonkeepers and dirty politicians to represent your Christian citizenship?"

"The business which brings me to your city and takes me all over the world is that I may bring back the temperance cause to the head and heart and conscience of the Christian church where it belongs. I don't mean the church steeple, or the stained glass windows, or the choir, or the pipe-organ or other wind instruments, but that great power organized on this earth that is geared to the will of God.

"I say bring back the temperance cause to the church, for it seems to me for a generation it has been the habit of the church to send out the temperance cause by the traveling lecturer and to committees of women, very much like you send out soiled linen to the laundry to be slicked up, a proceeding by which the temperance cause has suffered tremendously. I now refuse to consider the temperance question a thing to be quarantined and fumigated outside of the church. I refuse to have the drunkard turned over to the Keeley cure. I refuse to have the political situation turned over to the saloon keeper. These are tremendous days in which we are living and we have to have a gospel of tremendous dimensions, and I say the church has to go into politics against the things which are against the church.

"The puny gospel which has to do with a man's internal safety may not do for this age and this fight. What ever cheats the wife, betrays the child and harms humanity is a gospel theme, and any church society that cannot stand that sort of thing should go out of business, and the preacher should resign, and the sooner the better. We have worn the spiritual end of the church until it is as slick and shiny as the toe of St. Peter. I do not put it all at the door of the ministers as some do, but one of the things that ails us is that we are trying to cleanse the country by preachers. This country will never be cleansed by preachers and leaders and lecturers, alone, but it will be by simple Christian living on election day as on other days.

"Why is it that the sabbath has gone by default and that the saloonkeeper has the head of the political prestige and the preacher the end? Because the Christian men of the country are a pack of fools? No, because the Christian voter crawls under the seat of partisan politics.

"Civic Federations are spreading all over the country which are Christian and manly, and the Christian voter now proposes to scratch his ticket and mount the handwagon of civic fearlessness. (Applause.)

"You can use the ballot boxes as washbasins in which to cleanse your hands of complicity in the liquor traffic."

NEW LAWS REGARDING RECORDING

EXCELLENT MEASURES FOR INDEXING RECORDS, FILING OF PLANS AND PROTECTION.

Among the most important legislation put through during the past session of the legislature was that affecting the registration and preservation of documents regarding titles to real property. The looseness of the old system has been a reproach for many years and it is to the credit of Registrar Merriman that he was able to give such an outline of the requirements of his office that three excellent measures for the safe-guarding of titles to real property were passed.

Act 4 of the past session (Senate bill 35) provides for the indexing of records in the office of the Registrar of Conveyances. This most important feature in the conduct of a registry office was not covered by previous laws. Registrars were not required by law to keep indices at all. As a matter of fact such indices were kept but they were incomplete in that the system adopted was a crude one. The old "vowel" system was used, that is to say that names were indexed under the initial letter and the first vowel but under the new system the indices will be alphabetically and chronologically arranged. All names will be grouped and then arranged according to initials.

The new act also provides for the consolidation of each year's indices at least once in ten years while provision is also made for the remodeling of the earlier records at the option of the registrar.

Act 22 (Senate bill 1) is for the filing of plans and surveys of land in the office of the Registrar. There has been no provision in the laws heretofore for the proper filing of plans as they had to be of the regular size of 9 inches by 14 while it was an impossibility to reduce many plans to that size. The new act allows the filing of duly certified plans for the fee of $3. Each plan so filed will be given a file number and will be referred to by such number. The provisions of the act require that the plans shall give sufficient data to enable a competent surveyor to reproduce the whole tract or any subdivision or lot from the filed plan.

Act 20 (Senate bill 37) provides a penalty for the wrongful taking, detention, alteration, erasure or mutilation of any public document. Its title speaks for itself. The punishment provided is a fine of not more than $1000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

THE TRUE STANDARD. The world's greatest benefactors have been men who lived and died poor in material wealth. The scholar, the patriot, the statesman, the artist, the scientist, the teacher, the moral exemplar, these in the greatness of their work make the mere money-grubber seem measly small. There is too much worship of wealth, but it is not universal, and wealth itself is poor and feeble as compared with the power of thought and the spirit which moves men to work toward the highest human ideals.—Nashville American.
