ARCHIMEDES HARPAN

Relates His Editorial Experience with "The Wayback Horn of Plenty."

My name is Archimedes Harpan. I will recently I was editor of The Wayback Horn of Plenty.

Let the frivolous and trifling pass here and turn to another column.

My wife's name is Maria. She is a woman of an economical turn of mind and a great force of character.

The advertising patrons of The Horn of Plenty paid me mainly in sad-irons, cork-screws, garden seeds, health food and a variety of other things.

My first advertising contract yielded me a dozen liver pads.

My next important contract brought me an artificial leg. That rather stumped Maria, as we were both fully supplied with legs.

Then a traveling agent traded me a case of horse powders.

Then a traveling agent traded me a case of horse powders. That sort of health food non-plussed Maria for a time.

THE REFORMATORY BOYS AND THE KAIMILOA.

We cannot quite agree with the 'Bulletin' regarding the Reformatory School boys drafted on board the Kaimiloa.

Whether the Board of Education has a legal right to contract for these public wards in a service which will take them outside the limits of the Kingdom is another question.

Outside of all this comes up the question of what is best for the boys themselves? Is it better that they should be taught a trade or calling at which they may earn an honest living?

This, however, is a general proposition which does not void legal rights. These may not be ignored.

THE SUGAR MARKET.

Facts and Features of Interest to Hawaiian Planters.

Since our last regular advice from the Coast by mail steamers there have been many and frequent fluctuations in prices at San Francisco.

The lowest price for dry granulated in San Francisco was 5 cents, a figure lower than sugar had ever been sold for in San Francisco.

The sugar refineries in this city are at war. The object of the strife is to obtain control of the Pacific Coast market.

On the 8th of this month the California Refinery reduced all grades of sugar except yellow one-eighth of a cent a pound.

On the contrary, on April 22d the California Refinery advanced its figures 1/4 cent on all grades except Golden C.

The Interstate Commerce Bill has played no inconsiderable feature in the California sugar market.

The Hongkong 'Daily News' of a recent date has the following respecting the Abbie Carver.

Steele, on the evening previous, that section 4 of the Interstate Commerce Bill was suspended.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

HAVANA, April 9th.

Though prices during the past week have improved to a certain extent, it is no less true that they still range below the paying point to which producers are contending to bring them.

HOTEL DEL MONTE FIRE.

HABEAS CORPUS.

Two More Prisoners Released by Mr. Justice Preston. In the matter of Ah Mook and Chock Hui, on habeas corpus, Mr. Justice Preston rendered the following decision:

In this case I granted a writ of habeas corpus for the above named Ah Mook and Chock Hui, on the allegations in a petition presented by one Akai that the above named persons were detained by the Marshal in the Oahu prison unlawfully, under an alleged conviction for gaming.

The prisoners were brought before me and a return was filed by the Marshal averring that the prisoners were lawfully in his custody by virtue of a judgment of the Police Court of Honolulu, dated the 18th of March last, adjudging the prisoners together with one Lu Choy, guilty of violating section 5, chapter 41, of the Session Laws of 1886, and of the mittimus issued thereunder. This return was traversed.

It appears from the records that the prisoners and two other persons were charged before the Police Court with "gaming at chee fa at Honolulu on the 14th instant," and that after a motion to dismiss the complaint was made by counsel on behalf of the said prisoners, and one of the other parties charged, a nolle prosequi having been entered against the fourth man, on the ground that there was no evidence to support the charge of gaming, and which motion was overruled; the Magistrate convicted the prisoners of violating "section 5, chapter 41, Laws of 1886," and sentenced them to pay a fine of $75 and costs.

The prisoners were arrested in default of payment of the fine. I am of opinion that the conviction is illegal. The defendants were not charged under the Law of 1886, which provides a punishment against persons having in their possession unlawfully... ticket used or which can be used at any lottery.

This is a separate and distinct Act from the chapter in the Penal Code relating to gaming, and which offense is therein defined. The prisoners were not guilty of the offense with which they were charged, and should have been dismissed.

They might then have been re-charged with the proper offense, to which they could have made their defense, if any they had. From the manner in which the case was decided they were deprived of their legal right to make a defense, and the conviction thus being void they must be discharged, and it is so ordered. EDWARD PRESTON.

The Recent Gates on the Pacific Coast. The loss to ship owners during the recent severe gales which swept the Pacific Coast is estimated at from $700,000 to $800,000. Thayer, $12,000; barkentine San Luis, and dam, $50,000; schooner J. Important to Shippers by the Australia. Messrs. W. G. Irwin & Co., agents of the Oceanic Steamship Company, state that they have advice to the effect that the Zealandia, due here to-morrow, is expected to bring up a new propeller for the Australia. Should this be the case the Australia will leave on Monday, or one day earlier than her schedule time, so as to allow an extra day in San Francisco to go on the dry dock and have the propeller adjusted. Due notice, if this change takes place, will be given immediately on the arrival of the Zealandia.

Soldiers on a Spree. Several soldiers belonging to the Hawaiian army got on a spree yesterday afternoon. The liquor got the best of them, and they indulged in a regular fight among themselves, the blood flowing freely. Two of them were taken to the Station House. While Horace Crabbe was taking down their names one of them burst out crying, and said in wailing tones it was the first time he had ever been to the Station House. Both were bespattered with blood and mud. They were locked up.

The Oceanic Company's Royal Mail steamer Zealandia is due to-morrow for the Colonies, en route to San Francisco. Attention is directed to our special article on the position of the sugar market, and the attitude and policy of the two sugar refiners on the Coast.

Applications for money orders for foreign countries, per Royal Mail steamer Zealandia, will be received at the Post Office until 4 o'clock this afternoon. H. Kapena, the young Hawaiian who came by the Australia Tuesday, has been learning his trade at Messrs. Mircees, Watson, & Co.'s Iron Works, Glasgow, under the auspices of the Hawaiian Government.

Engine Company No. 4 has nominated the following ticket for the election of engineers, to be held in June: Chief Engineer, Chas. B. Wilson; First Assistant, Frank Hustace; Second Assistant, J. F. Morgan. Lieutenant Danenhower, one of the ill-fated survivors of Jeannette Arctic expedition, committed suicide at Annapolis April 20th, and was buried at Washington. It will be remembered that he was the senior surviving officer after De Long's death.

Engine Companies Nos. 1 and 2 and the Hook and Ladder Company each held their regular monthly meetings last evening and nominated the following ticket for the election of engineers in June: Chief Engineer, Chas. B. Wilson; First Assistant, Frank Hustace; Second Assistant, James F. Morgan. This ticket appears to be a popular one.

Private letters from San Francisco state that Jules Tavernier's panorama of Kilauea upon a large scale is to be presented in that city. Mr. E. C. Macfarlane represents Mr. Tavernier in this affair, and doubtless has made satisfactory arrangements for bringing it out. It will be necessary, however, for the artist himself to be on the spot if the panorama is to be a success. The San Francisco "Chronicle" of April 26th says: "At a meeting of the Bay Association of Congregational Ministers held at the Baldwin Hotel parlors yesterday, Rev. Professor Benton in the chair, it was voted to displace the Rev. Isaac Goodall and commend him to the Hawaiian Association. Mr. Goodall has taken up his residence in Hawaii and is doing independent evangelist work there."

A National Type Does Exist. Anna Bowman Dodd, in The Critic, discusses the questions of a fixed national type in its relation to American literature, and decides that such a type does exist as a basis for our literature. She says: "Foreign customs, habits, language, neither affect nor influence us. It is the American who influences and imposes, just as in the case of language, German, Swedish, and French lose themselves in our native English tongue." "These facts ought to be proof enough that at least a national type exists. It can not be argued away. It is a type which is neither English, nor German, nor French, but American—a new man, made, if you please, out of several old ones, but still an entirely new person in the family of nations. In action, in statesmanship, in military achievement, this type has found its embodiment in such men as Lincoln and Grant. Could these great men ever be taken for other than Americans?"—The Current.

Good Land in the Staked Plains. And now it turns out, on examination, that the abused Staked Plains in Texas are good farm lands. I wrote the same a year ago, and now Mr. Isalah Tronfoust, who has just spent three months examining the so-called Staked Plains in the Panhandle, tells me he has never seen a finer body of cultivatable land as this same Staked Plains. "It is covered with buffalo grass," said Mr. Tronfoust, "of the very best quality." "And it is not a sandy barren plain," I asked. "No. It is equal to any land in Pennsylvania. There are a few sandy bluffs along the banks of the North Canadian river. It is generally a good farm country and is being taken up by homesteaders. The cattlemen spread false reports about the Staked Plains. They want to keep it for grazing—but towns are springing up all through it.—Eli Perkins in New York World.

Grant's Journals To Be Published. Col. Fred Grant is busily engaged in editing the journals of his father's tour around the world. It is his present plan, seconded by the wishes of Mrs. Grant, to publish this interesting narrative on his own account. Under the contract with the publishers of Gen. Grant's memoirs it is stipulated that none of his papers should be made public for three years from that date. It is not said whether there has been any misunderstanding with the publishers of the present work; but it is known that Col. Grant is opposed to entering into any more such arrangements. The journal, judging from a general knowledge of its contents, will be exceedingly interesting. It treats upon notable men and things of the midland and Philadelphia Times.

One of the Kentucky Yankees. I was in a hotel in Washington a few days past, when I met a young man of unusual appearance. Said one, mentioning his name: "There goes probably the ablest business man in California." Said I: "Where did he come from?" "Why, he came from Kentucky. He was one of the Kentucky Yankees, and a Kentucky Yankee can skin any Yankee on the globe."—"Yankee" Letter.

It is better to wait for a coal train to go by than to crawl under it while in motion. A French architectural journal recalls an observation made by Viollet le Duc that lead plates for roofing purposes are often pierced by insects. He accuses the workers of being the authors of the little holes that he found gnawed in lead roofs, but later observers have discovered that both worms and flies often drill through heavy plates. Twenty-five years ago it was found that the lead bullets of cartridges had been stored in wooden boxes were badly gnawed, and a number of gall or saw flies were found in the act of working upon them.—Boston Budget.

A NILE EXCURSION.

MINISTER COX DESCRIBES SOME INTERESTING EXPERIENCES.

The inhabitants of the Valley of the Great River - Railroad Trip - The Ancient One-Handled Plough - A Plague of Flies - The Buffalo.

The railroad trip to Assout is not to be forgotten. We had been in Egypt before, but never beyond Cairo, or the pyramids of Ghiza, so that the scenes on the railroad travel were novel, diverting and interesting. Having an apartment or carriage to ourselves, we placed our portmanteaus on the seat and mounted thereon as a vantage situation, and for eight hours, from a. m. till evening, we gazed out of the windows at the strangeness of the panorama, with its constantly changing colors and forms. Remember, it is winter - mid-February. The grain harvest is nearly ripe. The cotton is picked, only a few bolls remain in the fields. The sugar cane is being cut and carried on donkeys, camels and cars to the sugar factories. The long stalks are seen everywhere. The little big-bellied Arab boys, in their nakedness, are gleaning the succulent, saccharine stalks between their glistening upper and nether teeth. Every one on the route has a long sugar-cane, carrying one end in the mouth. The flies are settling thick around the juicy orifices. The air is pregnant with the expression of the cane. The sugar factories are at work. The fumes not only add their fragrance, but the long iron chimneys give their peculiar business look to the landscape.

There were other peculiarities for which the car was a point of observation. Not the costumes of the people, for they seemed uniformly of a dark or blue bourgeois. The sexes are hardly distinguishable from each other, except by the beard or turban. There is much nakedness, or nearly so. After an eager glance towards the pyramids of Sakarrah, near old Memphis, the multitudinous mud huts and villages appear. Palms in abundance everywhere surround themselves in their stately beauty. The soil is being ploughed in places for the new crop. The people are said to be industrious, but everywhere we see them sitting under walls, in the shade and covered with flies - ears, face, hands, feet covered with flies. The animal life seems to move as slowly as if it had ages to do a lifetime of work. The buffalo is very unlike our almost obsolete big-headed species. It is seen in the fields ploughed with the old one-handed plough of the time of Setis, or turning the water-wheel. At a distance, and especially when cooling in the water, it looks like a pachyderm. In fact, its brown-black tough hide, ungainly form and hideous face, to which the horn gives a sinister expression, make him an object of curious interest. Here and there we observe shepherds, generally children with shepherd dogs. Some are Bedouins, with heads of camel-hair, black and dirty. They have flocks of sheep and goats, and often mated flocks. There are generally a donkey and a yellow dog and plenty of naked children. Yellow and white flowers are already budding in the meadows.

At various times on the railroad we obtained glimpses of the white and yellow stands; and the peculiar masts of the dahabieh at an odd angle, with their still more quaint sails. Ridges and plains of sands soon give way to villages, which are the sign and sight of palm groves. On both sides of the valley of the Nile lone, arid and tawny mountains appear. They are pictures not unlike the desert of Moab - out of whose wilderness the Baptist came. These are the shaggy barriers of the fruitful valley. For such fences are needed to separate the fields, the cane, interwoven, makes a tolerable pretext of protection. It would not turn a "resolute" rabbit. Everywhere are seen stakes, indicating metes and bounds and proprietorship, which have to be renewed when the Nile flood disappears. Old well sweeps are seen, such as were common in Ohio in my boyhood. They lift the water out of the soft soil to the surface. At the bottom of the well is, of course, on a level with the river, and, as I said, the river is everything to Egypt. It is now quite low; still, the fields have ponds in them; but the pond water does not seem stagnant. Indeed the people use the water for every purpose - cooking, washing, bathing, etc.

A PLAGUE OF FLIES. After the buffalo, for number and utility, come the donkey and camel. I had no idea that the donkey was such a "daisy" in Egypt. Bridleless and saddleless, he will amble gaily with a family on his vertebras. He is as patient and as meek as if his burden were nothing. Sometimes you do not see his legs and only parts of his ears when he is loaded down with sugar cane or grasses. I send you with this picture of him - loaded - with only his ears protruding. The camel looks as usual, "sinful," and moves in a mysterious way, as if he grudged every time he lifted his foot. If I should be called on to name the most vital element of Egypt it would not be the buffalo, donkey, camel, ostrich or man. It would be the flies. It was winter, but they were as plentiful as in the time of summer or of the plague. In the eighth chapter of Exodus it is said that the Lord "did according to the word of Moses, and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people: there remained not one." What a relief! "Not one." That was near 4,000 years ago. They have accumulated since enormously. The infantile death rate is due mostly to flies. On the vessel or in the mud, in the temple or the street - flies! From Thinite, first dynasty, 2700 B. C., to the time of the present court and unselfish khedive - flies! Theban, Bubastie, Saitic, Ethiopian, Macedonian, Greek, Roman and Mahometan dynasties - flies! From the finest buzzer to the biggest blue-bottle - flies! Touching with dainty foot and prehensile grip the beautiful eye-lash of Cleopatra; biting with chivalric intrepidity through the harness of Godfrey de Bouillon, and pursuing with a "nipping air" Persian, Kermani, Syrian, and Room as they fit through history - flies! - S. S. Cox's Letter in New York World.

A Novel Flower on the Isthmus. A novel flower has been found on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, at the San Jose hacienda, some twenty-two leagues from the city of Tehuantepec. This floral chameleon has the faculty of changing its colors during the day. In the morning it is white; when the sun is at its zenith it is red, and at night it is blue. This red-white-and-blue flower grows on a tree about the size of the guayave tree, and another peculiarity of this flower is that only at noon does it give out any perfume. - Central America Letter.

Nana Sahib's Widow. The widow of Nana Sahib, the leader of the Sepoy mutiny of 1857, died recently at Katmandu, the capital of Nepal. She was the daughter of a Hindoo school teacher and shared her husband's ambition to ascend one day the throne of India. She lived for many years on a small pension granted her by the government of Nepal. - Chicago Times.

England's Wheat Imports. England, it is stated, now imports from Russia 5,000,000 hundred weight of wheat, against 10,000,000 fifteen years ago. In the same interval the imports from America has increased from 12,000,000 hundred weight to 20,000,000. - New Orleans Times-Democrat.

TWO LETTERS.

"My darling wife," (he writes), "come home; I cannot do without you. Throughout these gloomy rooms I roam; My thoughts are all about you."

"But if you think it best to stay, Why, do so - perhaps you'd better. Don't think of me at all, I pray" - And thus winds up the letter.

Quickly a smile goes o'er his face, As in the ink again he dips. "Dear John," (he writes), "you know the place, And don't forget to bring instances!" - Tom Masson, in New York Sun.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

I asked my love to row with me Upon the moonlit lake; And, far from shore, where none could see, I tried a kiss to take.

She promptly boxed my ears, and so We're on bad terms just now, I thought we'd have a pleasant row - Instead, we had a row. - Cambridge Chronicle.

QUEER WRINKLES.

Office boy (to editor) - There is a man outside who says that he has a bill he wants to present. Editor - Say to him that his manuscript is respectfully declined.

JUST HER SIZE.

"I think I wear twos," she stammered to the shoemaker; "do I not?" "Yes, ma'am," said the best dealer, "you wear twos." Then, under his breath, "One on each foot."

NEW AND FRESH.

Reporter (looking for items) - Anything new or fresh this morning in the railroad line? Railroad official (thoughtfully) - H'm - let me see - yes, that point you are leaning against is new and fresh. It was only put on this morning.

JUSTLY CELEBRATED.

"Do you know why we celebrate Washington's Birthday?" asked Mr. Hendricks of his son Bobby; "why his birthday is honored more than - than mine, for instance?" "Oh, under his breath," "One on each foot."

THE TRIALS OF FARMING.

"I can't imagine what the trouble is with that cow," said a New Yorker, who is giving his attention to amateur farming this season. "She looks all right," commented a neighbor. "Yes, she looks all right," agreed the New Yorker, "but the doctid critter won't give down her milk. When I bought her a month ago she gave twenty-four quarts a day; now she doesn't get milked often enough," added the puzzled amateur. "Not a day passes I don't milk that cow half a dozen times, at least." - New York Sun.

THE YOUNG IDEA.

Florence, aged 4, demanded as her perquisite the wishbone of every fowl brought into the house. One day she was carefully arranging her collection when her father came into the room. "Fader," she said, looking up - "fader, is you doing to die?" "Why, yes, Florence, we must all die some time," he said, touched by her earnest look. "Fader, when you dies die, may I have your wishbone?" - Rome Sentinel.

A CASE OF PRE-EMPTION.

"Oh! ain't you mean," said one 6-year-old to the other. "You took the biggest cake. I was just going to take it myself." - Life.

JUST SPANK HER.

"Mamma, didn't you say if this dolly got broke, somebody'd have to be spanked?" "Yes, I did." "Well, dolly broke her head to-day. Just spank her." - Chicago News.

FULL EXPLANATION.

The polite child is the latest in the juvenile world. She was strolling around the neighborhood on a tour of observation, when she came across a colored man sitting on a doorstep. She stood with her finger in her mouth looking at him. Finally she said: "You're a colored man, ain't you?" "You are a very polite little girl," he said. "Yes, I am a colored man." "Oh, yes; I'm very polite. I call every nigger I see a colored man." - San Francisco Chronicle.

Nearly as Bad.

He was making his first call, and all the formalities of the season were in full blast. She toyed with her fan as she conversed about the gayeties of the winter time. Leisurely strolling into the elegant drawing room came the family dog, a large and intelligent type of the Newfoundland breed. It was a warm evening and the dog came in with his mouth open and his tongue protruding from his mouth. He made directly for the hostess, who manifested great uneasiness at the first sight of the unexpected animal. As he came nearer the young woman dropped her fan, mounted first the heavy upholstered chair and then the centre table.

Seeing the unusual performance, the young man followed suit and was soon on top of the marble mantelpiece, to which place of safety he invited his hostess. Meanwhile the dog, the cause of the commotion, crawled under the sofa, preparing himself to take a nap. "When was he taken?" asked the young man, as he balanced himself amid the mantel ornaments.

"Oh, he's been 'that way all summer,'" replied the young woman.

"It's strange he doesn't try to bite us, isn't it?" continued the young man.

"Oh, he wouldn't bite anybody," remarked the young hostess.

"Why, hasn't he got the hydrophobia?"

"No," replied she, "he's got flies, and that's pretty near as bad." - St. Paul Globe.

BREVITIES.

Extract from a young Newport swell's note to a friend: "Sorry I can't be introduced to your sister. This afternoon, mi Valet left mi Three o'clock Suit in New York and I couldn't go out in a Checked suit. Then, Orfully sorry. Faithfully yours, Algernon Bertie Sully." - New York Mail.

Seaside engagements: "Your attentions, sir, and your offer of marriage are exceedingly flattering to me, but I am already engaged for this season." - Fliegende Blatter.

An honest dealer will do his buying and selling by the same scales. There are no two weights about him. - New Orleans Picayune.

Smith - I saw you carrying home a couple of nice looking watermelons last night, Brown. How much did they cost you? Brown - I don't know yet. The doctor is up at the house just now. - Life.

Don't get mad at the squalling girl-baby in the horse car. Think what she will be seventeen years from date, and let your active imagination banish the disagreeable reality. - Cambridge Chronicle.

"Do you know the nature of an osh, ma'am?" inquired the judge. "Well, I reckon I oter," was the reply. "My husband drives a canal boat." - Merchant Traveler.

Butcher (to young housekeeper) - I have nothing left, mum, but a hind quarter of lamb and liver. Young Housekeeper - Very well, you may send a hind quarter of liver. - Life.

A Jersey City man recently sold his wife for $20. It is difficult to understand what makes New Jersey women so valuable. In many places women are given away. - Northtown Herald.
